THE UNIVERSE

Yours to discover

Astrophotography Exhibition

The cosmos provides an exceptional source of wonder and mystery, a richness for personal experience and enjoyment, exploration, discovery and even revelation. Western Australia is very fortunate to have access to some of the best night-time skies on the planet. Superb views of our southern Milky Way are available to all, for those who are willing to travel, to seek out dark skies, away from cities. Distinctive constellations including the Southern Cross, Scorpius and Orion provide bright patterns of stars that are easy for most sky watchers to recognise and they provide a basis for learning many other constellations of the night sky.

Western Australia has a vibrant network of talented astrophotographers, who visually document the cosmos, in moments of time and space. They become a witness to the majesty and wonder of the cosmos, and through the visual image, are then able to share their passion and insights to the broader community, many of whom rarely get the opportunity to experience the cosmos for themselves. Astrophotographers travel to Western Australian, Australian and international locations in their pursuit to achieve superb astrophotography.

“The Universe. Yours to discover” is a collaborative astrophotography exhibition featuring works by leading Western Australian astrophotographers, including James Athanasou, Mark Bridger, Dr John Goldsmith, Colin Jenkinson, Trevor Lundstrom, Brendan Mitchell, Paul Sartory, Dr Chris Thorne, Brett Turner & William Vrbasso.

Images of beauty, wonder and awe, of stunning moments in time, in ancient landscapes, recorded for all to experience, and for all to enjoy and appreciate. The Universe is yours to discover!
